SELBY JONES' SUICIDE.

Tragic Death of a Well-Known Former Wheeling Man.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLING.

He Could Not Rest Under Suspicion and Took His Own Life--Another More to Blame...The Story of the Terrible Affair.

KANSAS CITY, Mo , Nov. 12 .- Busines complications and financial reverses led Selby Jones to send a bullet through his brain almost in the presence of his family Tuesday night. The charge has z'ement, but there is not, at the present. the strongest proof that the shortage discovered was due to him. . An expert is still at work upon the books, but beyoud the fact that something crooked has been discovered nothing definite in known. Seiby Jones came to this city from Wheeling, W. Va., some nine years ago and connected himself with the hardware firm of Hull & Willis, putting a S21,000 of his own money. He was ade Secretary and Treasurer of the rm. A large trade was built up and the him. A large trace wes built up and the house was rated among the most reliable in the Missouri Valley. The first intimation of trouble came to the surface last December, when the book-keeper absconded with a good deal of ready cash. The matter was kept as quiet as possible, and so far as the public could see to extra exertion to capture the book-keeper was made. Six months later the firm sold out, and it was then discovered that the atock did not invoice as much as expected.

For eight years the books had not been examined and when an attempt was made to settle up the affairs of the company to settle up the affairs of the company they were found in a frightfully chaotic state. In August, two months after the firm sold out, M. H. Hall, one of the firm, died a complete bankrupt. He was thought to be wealthy, but a secret society to which he belonged had to advance money to meet the funeral expenses. A few days 250 John H. Hobbs, of Wheeling, arrived in the city and of the company. He accured the services of an expert to go over the books and on Tuesday evidence that they had been tampered with was obtained. Jones is was called before Mr. Hobbs and the former President of the company, T. F. Willis, and the former accused him of serockedness. Jones, when shown the condition of the books; admitted that they had been doctored, but said he was not responsible for the work.

It was found that the firm had been systematically robbed by false entries of freight bills, but most of the shortage was located in the years that the crooked bookkeeper had charge of the books, Jones said he had made the Ireight bill entries as given to him on slips furnished by the bookkeeper, and supposed they were correct, and while there is a shortege of at least $125,000 it is not certain that Jones was responsible for it. If he had not killed himself, it is believed he could have cleared himself of the charge, and that he fired the shot under the impulse of the moment, is almost certain, although he was despondent during the evening and said life was not worth the living.

He had just entered the pantry when he sent to bullet through his brain. A moment before he had left his family to attend the furnace and get a drink of water. The remains will eventually be sent to Wheeling for hisriel. was located in the years that the crooked water. The remains will eventually be sent to Wheeling for burial. Jones left a note for him wife stating that he had been falsely accused; that his friends had deserted him, and that he could not hear to live lown.

Mr. Selby Jones was a native of Wheeling, and lived here until about ten years age. Ho was general agent of the B & O. railroad Company here up till the time he left for Kansas City. He married Miss Georgia Harbour, of this city, who with two sons in their teens, survive him. Ho was highly thought of here, and the nows of his death, when received here yesterday, produced a profound impression.

CHARLESTON, W. V.A., Nov. 12.—The rumored killing of Bad McCoy, one of the notorious Haffield-McCoy party, has been verified and the particulars rejected here. It seems that on the 30th of October Bud McCoy, having eaten dinner with one John Goshorn in Pike county, Ky., started away from the house on horsoback. A short distance away he met Ples McCoy and Bill Dyre, who, as soon as he had gotten by, opened fire and put a number of bullets in him. He died instantly, but the pair continued their fire, riddling his body, then pounding his head with a rock to be sure he was dead. Dr. Harrison To-night

Dr. J. Charles Harrison, who lectured to a large audience on Monday evening last, will deliver his last and most important lecture to men this evening! His subject will be "Specific Diseases—Their Causes and Carree". Norman Knight sets foot upon his land he will slay him within a month. On the instant a knight and a lady, wrecked on the coast, become his guests. The contest between his knightly honor and his superstition, aided by the taunts and persuasions of his old associates, forms a thrilling tale, well wrought out. Finally, Thordisa returns, and under her intinence he decides to break his oath. He confesses all to Hugo, the Norman knight, and breaking his sword, offers his breast to Hugo, who forgives him. I The death he had called down upon himself does not strike him, and the curtain falls leaving him happy in Thordisa's love and Christianity.

Mr. Downing's characterization of Harold left little to be desired. Miss Blair's Thordisa was a poem in itself.

Mr. Holt as Sigard acquitted himself admirably, and Miss Davis as the Lady labelful was equally commendable, while the company as a whole gave a rendition worthy of much praise.

The stage setting was fine, and the accessories completed one of the most memorably meritorious productions, from first to last, seen in Wheeling in a long time.
